Foreword

As Defence Minister, I am pleased to present publicly the Ministry of Defence's 5-year Strategic Plan for 2023 - 2027. This will be used to develop the effectiveness and capability of the Ministry, the National Army and the Armed Forces Courts. The details of the plan will be reviewed regularly and adapted to account for progress and in reaction to unforeseen events.

This plan makes use of planning practices and tools developed by the Ministry of Planning and National Development (MoPND). Appropriate parts of this plan will be aligned with or included in the National Development Plan III, as it is developed.

A key theme in this plan is the MoD's constant contribution to good governance: to develop effective, accountable and transparent public institutions at all levels. This is particularly important for Defence as we continue to serve the people of Somaliland by protecting and defending the Republic of Somaliland, its sovereignty, people, territory and democratic government.

H.E Abdiqani Mohamuud Ateye Fariid,

Minister of Defence

Acknowledgement

The MoD's 5-year Strategic Plan sets the outline for the Ministry's work and for management of the National Army and Armed Forces Courts. I expect all Directors and staff to know the contents in detail and to work hard to deliver their contributions on time. This will require excellent coordination between staff, within the MoD, between MoD, the National Army and the Armed Forces Courts, and across government and with international partners.

The plan could not have been developed without the input of many of the staff, working under the leadership of the Minister. In particular, I wish to acknowledge the contribution of the Department Directors, especially the Director of Policy and Planning, and the National and International Advisers, UK Defence Adviser, Colonel (Ret'd). Ronnie Bradford and National defence adviser, Abdirahman Warsame.

Ahmed Abdirizak Dirie.

Director General, Ministry of Defence

PART TWO SITUATIONAL ANALYSIS

6. History of the MoD and Army.

The Somaliland National Army draws on a rich military tradition, dating back to the early 20th century when the British first raised a Somali force, soon designated the 6th King's African Rifles (6th KAR). Then the British established the Camel Constabulary subsequently renamed the Somaliland Camel Corps. Both the Camel Corps and 6th KAR saw service during World War II, in east Africa and Burma (Myanmar). After the defeat of the Italian forces in the Horn of Africa in 1941, the British formed the Somaliland Scouts who were responsible for the security of Somaliland until independence in 1960. On the formation of the Somali Republic, the Scouts merged with the Somali Police to form the Somali National Army.

The Somaliland National Army (SLNA) was formally established on 2 February 1994 but its origins lie in the Somali National Movement (SNM) and other clan militias which fought against and for the Somali regime. Following the cessation of hostilities in 1996, the Army absorbed most of the clan militias in Somaliland and took control of all major military weapons. As part of a process of demobilization and reintegration, and pending the introduction of regular salaries, the government granted a temporary concession of fertile farmland at Tog Wajaale to military families to allow them to support themselves. The successful combining of former adversaries in one military force has been a major factor in Somaliland's stability and security.

The Somaliland Constitution (2000) established the President of the Republic as Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. It also established the Ministry of Defence and the Military Courts and directed that the Minister of Defence shall always be a civilian. A new MoD building was constructed in 2011, with support from the UK. Other defence construction around this time and later included accommodation and training rooms at the Abdilahi Askar Military Academy at Dararweyne, and at the Miiska Saraakiisha in Hargeisa, refurbishment of the military hospitals in Hargeisa and Burco and the construction of new offices at Army HQ, again with support from UK.

In 2012, the Army introduced a formal rank structure and pay scale. Since then, the Army has received UK support for training of staff in Army HQ and for the development and delivery of a SLNA junior command and staff course for officers. In recent years, MoD staff have also received training and mentoring.

In November 2018, the MoD absorbed three former independent agencies: Somaliland Mine Action Centre (SMAC), the National Demining Agency (NDA) and the National Demobilization and Reintegration Commission (NDRC) and assumed their responsibilities.

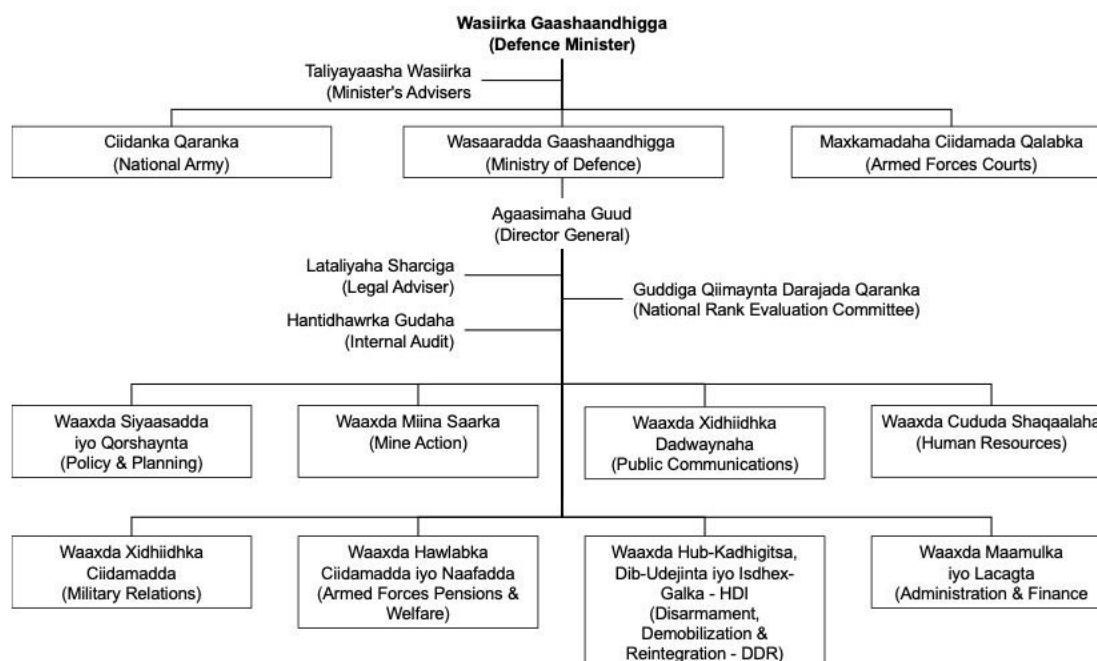

There have been four Defence Ministers: Abdillahi Ali Ibrahim (5 July 2003 - 27 July 2010), Ahmed Haji Ali Adami (27 July 2010 - 14 December 2017), Isse Ahmed Yusuf (14 December 2017 - 31 March 2019) and the present Minister, Abdiqani Mohamoud Aateye.

The SLNA commanders have been: Colonel Abdi Samad Haji Abdillahi (02/02/1994 – 02/12/2003), Colonel Nuh Ismail Tani (02/12/2003 – 11/12/201), Major General Mohamed Hasan Abdullahi (11/12/2011 – 11/02/2012), Major General Ismail Mohamed Osman (11/02/2012 – 15/08/2016) and the present Chief of Staff, Major General Nuh Ismail Tani.

7. The MoD today.

In 2021, the MoD reorganised into eight departments as shown below.

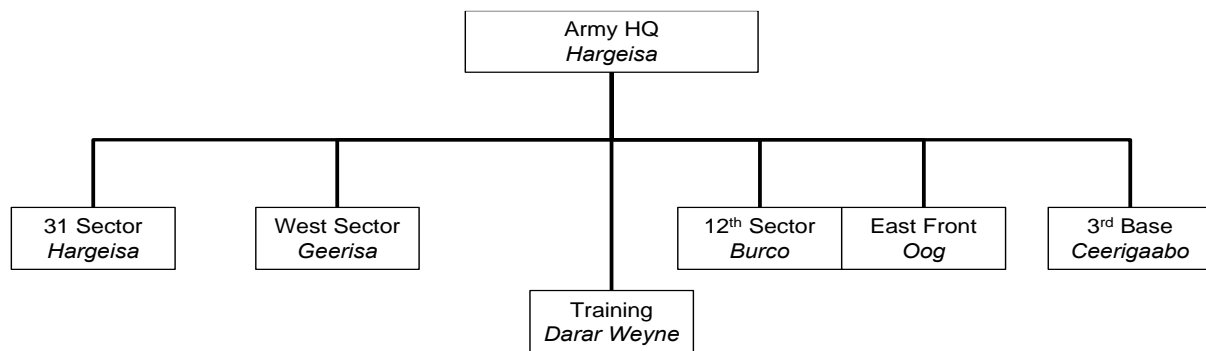

Though disrupted by Covid, a key focus of the MoD in the last two years has been to establish staff in their appointments in these departments. The MoD's first annual work plan was developed and published in 2021; this was renewed in 2022.

8. The SLNA today.

The organisation and operations of the Army are a product of its iterative growth from militias, the internal nature of its tasks and the operational contexts of eastern and western Somaliland. Its organisation and responsibilities are not yet codified in law but its forces protect the territory and people of Somaliland, particularly from territorial claims by Somalia and Puntland. They also support, and, in places, replace, the Police, particularly in the disruption and cessation of clan and community conflict.

The Army includes both regular forces and allied clan militias. Training for recruits, non-commissioned officers and officers is carried out at Dararweyne, while selected officers attend specialist courses and staff college in Ethiopia.

PART THREE DEFENCE GOAL AND OBJECTIVES

9. The Defence Goal. By 2027, the MoD should be a fully functional ministry, effective, accountable and transparent, working in close coordination with other ministries and organisations. It should have addressed, completely or in part, several key issues, including protective security, explosive hazard management, insecurity in eastern Somaliland, defence resource management and Army personnel management.

PART FIVE IMPLEMENTATION

Part Five – Coordination and review of work.

11. Coordination. The implementation of this plan will require frequent, top-level direction and coordination. A Defence Committee (Defence development committee) will be established, chaired by the Defence Minister, with members from the Army, MoD and Military Courts, to oversee and direct work. This will meet quarterly to review progress on all items and to consider specific issues in greater detail. Staff appointed to lead on an item will submit a short, written report in advance of the meeting, summarizing progress and identifying any concerns. Detailed terms of reference will follow. The Committee will direct amendments to this strategic plan.

12. Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E). All activity, outputs and tasks, related to this plan and listed in the Results Framework, will be subject to M&E, as required by Somaliland law. This includes monitoring of inputs, process and outputs, and the evaluation of impact. The Head of MoD's Internal Audit is responsible for drawing up and delivering an appropriate programme of M&E. Directors are responsible for ensuring that appropriate information is recorded, maintained and made available to enable M&E.

13. Resource Mobilization. This plan will be mainly resourced by the regular budgets of the MoD, Army and Military Courts. Where additional or special purpose funding is required, a request will be made to the Ministry of Finance, in accordance with normal budgetary procedures. Where possible, the MoD will also draw on appropriate globally available resources, both technical and financial to support this plan.
